

Ellen and Francis Zickefoose
January 23 to February 4, 2010

Sam's Taxi met Ellen and Francis at the airport and brought them to Young Island Cut where Windward Passage was moored

We sailed to Admiralty Bay on Bequia where we did some final provisioning and did a walking tour of the town

Sunsets in the islands are always beautiful

We enjoyed dinner at the Gingerbread House

We sailed to Tobago Cays to spend a few days

Entering the anchorage at Tobago Cays

Our favorite boat vendor, Walter visited with us to sell his T shirts and to take our order for chocolate croissants to be delivered in the morning

Ellen reads about the fish and turtles that we see around the boat and when snorkeling the reef

After another beautiful sunset, Francis and Randy spend the evening playing cribbage. The next morning Randy enjoys the chocolate croissants that Walter has delivered

A really big squall catches Walter and he scrambled to protect his wares. The storm was over in 20 minutes but certainly got our attention. A couple of boats dragged their anchor but there was no damage

Iguanas are wild on the islands and are generally harmless unless they are provoked when they can become quite nasty

We visit Mayreau where Susan renewed her friendship with Tyrex, the son of the owner of the Paradise Restaurant

Ellen and Francis enjoy a brisk sail back to Bequia

Ellen and Francis proudly display their “graduation stars” they received for learning sailing terminology

Randy teaches Ellen how to make the braided pulls that we use on the pelican hooks

Ellen makes new friends at the turtle sanctuary on Bequia

The ladies head for one last shopping experience ashore

Windward Passage loves the trade wind sailing

A farewell dinner at the Xcape Restaurant at Young Island Cut
